Course Description

This training is designed to educate the audience on the basics of human sex trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children (CSEC). The presenters will share the difference between the two and the factors that they have in common. The audience will learn how human sex trafficking and CSEC happens, what tactics the traffickers use to lure victims in and what victim vulnerabilities might be. The presenters will also share typical diagnoses and mental health issues associated with human sex trafficking and CSEC and various treatment methods and modalities successfully used with this population. The training will end with an opportunity for the audience to ask questions of the presenters.

Learning Objectives

Upon completion of this training participants will

- Define and differentiate between human sex trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children (CSEC)
- Identify risk factors, vulnerabilities and red flags for human sex trafficking and CSEC
- Describe the recruiting and grooming process for human sex trafficking and CSEC
- List common mental health challenges and diagnoses of those who have experienced human sex trafficking and/or CSEC
- Identify treatment methods and evidence-based practices to address mental health challenges associated with human sex trafficking and/or CSEC
- Identify resources within the community
